PRINCESS PERKINS.

Over in Europe just now the Princess Perkins matter is the subject of much scandal in high circles, for the Princess is a niece of Her Majesty, the deposed Queen of Spain, and her husband is an ex United States Consul. As it is quite an unusual thing for an American man to marry for titles, whatever we may say about the daughters, the facts may be of interest to our readers. After his marriage with the Princess, Perkins—Phonix, what a name for royalty!—went to Paris to live, and took apartments in the house of one Mme. Milhan. This was in 1871. For the first few weeks Prince Perkins paid his bills regularly, and then began to beg for those little accommodations so many impecunious young men have asked of their landladies, and she, feeling flattered by the high quality of her guests, willingly consented. Perkins was connected with a grand telegraphic scheme for a submarine line between England and Spain; he would soon be in funds, he was to receive a large legacy from America; in short, he played all the little arts that the confidence man knows so well how to use. Time rolled on but no money rolled into the coffers of Mme. Milhan. A child was born to the princely pair and the obsequies were held with great pomp, Alphonse XII, standing as god-father and Queen Isabella sending a diamond present; but still no money, and the landlady had expended largely of her own funds to defray the expenses of the new baby's layette and christening. But the Princess continued to write on superb paper, ornamented with the royal cypher, and to live in style befitting her rank. Finally bankruptcy stared the landlady in the face, and she sued Perkins in the vain hope that Queen Isabella would open her heart's purse and pay the debt. But she didn't know Isabella, who obstinately refused to do either, and Prince Perkins went to the debtor's prison for a year. As for the Princess, she followed the fortunes of the Bourbons, and, going to Madrid, she is now a pensioner on her cousin King Alphonso. But the Parisian landlady now says the Princess is as bad as the naughty Perkins, and aided in swindling her, so she again goes to court with a skilled advocate to Perkins for 35,000 francs and two years' imprisonment. But you must catch your man before you hang him, and the Princess must go to France before the judgment of the court can be enforced against her. So after all, Milhan gets only revenge. The Princess is said to be an exemplary wife, visiting her Perkins daily in his prison before leaving Paris. All the trouble doubtless arises from an undue reliance upon "the Queen, my aunt," who undoubtedly thought "the Princess, my niece, got herself into a pretty mess by marrying a penniless and rankless Yankee."

CARNIVOROUS FLOWERS.—The extraordinary discoveries lately made by naturalists in regard to the carnivorous habits of certain flowers have attracted wide attention. "Carnivorous" is a bloodthirsty term to apply to a flower and there is something at first thought repulsive in the connection. Nevertheless, the fact is proved beyond a doubt that there are flowers which first attract, then entrap the insects, and then by a slow process absorb them into their own substance, all but those harder parts in some of their victims which seem to be indigestible. In other words, some very delicate subjects of the floral kingdom do literally, and as a habit, feed on living creatures of the animal world, thriving and blooming on this abnormal diet. It strikes us at first as an outrage on the botanical properties, as unnatural and monstrous. It is premeditated slaughter, for some of these flesh-loving plants are baited with a sweetish fluid which attracts wingless insects within the tube and they are unable to crawl out; some are lined with fine, needle-like points which present a bristling palisade against the prisoner who has thus unsuspectingly passed them once, but finds return impossible; and some open like valves until the victim has entered, then contract and hold him in a living tomb, where certain death awaits him. Traps and snares indeed are these curious arrangements in the nervous and fibrous texture of these deadly plants.

The simple fact that insects are caught in the hooded cups, or on spring petals or leaves of certain flowers, has long been known, and in general accepted as scarcely more than accidental, although here and there a sharp inquirer into the secret processes of nature has been investigating in this direction; but within a recent period attention has been turned specially to these phenomena with a view to ascertaining if there are not some peculiar laws in the relation between plants and insects, and the result has been startling, even to the experimentalists themselves, who find that the former have a nervous system and digestive fluids, and that the latter supply food which assimilates gradually with the vegetable substance and in part affords it nutriment.

AN INDIAN WIFE'S DEVOTION.—Cha-pink-pa-lu-ta, or "Red Bud," the only woman accompanying the Sioux delegation, is rather comely in appearance, and is about twenty-five years of age. She is the wife of Bad Wound, to whom she is very much attached, as the following incident will show:

"The Indian agents were restricted in the number of chiefs they were to bring to Washington, and were forbidden by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to bring any women. The latter, however, were as anxious to come as the braves, and when told of the order of the Commissioner there was weeping and wailing among the dusky maidens of the forest. Cha-pink-pa-lu-ta quietly made up her mind that she would go at all hazards, and several hours after the departure of the wagon containing her husband to compel her to do so. She firmly declined, however, to trust her husband to the seductions of Washington society unattended, and even the efforts of agent Saville to induce her to return were unavailing. She seems to greatly enjoy her visit to the pale faces, and keeps an eye on "the old man" at all times, invariably accompanying him in his walks about town. This incident serves to illustrate the truth of Bryant's couplet slightly modified:

"Skins may differ, but affection dwells in white and red the same."

If you feel Dull, Drowsy, Debilitated, have frequent Headache, Mouth Tastes badly, poor Appetite, and Tongue Coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently.

The Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of the disease, and if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

Armed with this ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE, NAUSEA, the Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World!

I have never seen or tried such a simple, efficacious, satisfactory and pleasant remedy in my life."—H. Hainer, St. Louis, Mo.

"I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect."—Hon. Alex. H. Stephens.

"Your Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am persuaded it is a valuable addition to the medicinal science."—Gov. J. Gill Shorter, Ala.

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga., and Philadelphia.

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painfulness which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which the Simmons' Liver Regulator is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

The Clergy.

"My wife and self have used the Regulator for years, and testify to its great virtues."—Rev J. R. Felder, Perry, Ga.

Ladies' Endorsement.

"I have given your medicine a thorough trial, and in no case has it failed to give full satisfaction."—Ellen Meacham, Chastahooche, Fla.
